(Transportation, breakfast, and lunch will not be available for this program)

Students will participate in a summer workshop to learn how to effectively create visual stories. This workshop will also develop students' social emotional skills as they learn to positively express their feelings and ideas about the world around them using multimedia. During camp, students will:

- refine their writing skills while learning the basics of screenwriting
- engage with industry standard film equipment
- learn how to operate their cell phone* as a filmmaking tool
(*cell phones are not required, but students are strongly encouraged to bring theirs if they have one)
- apply fundamental principles of editing while creating a film

By the end of the workshop, students will have written, directed and edited an original film. Older secondary students with some experience will serve as mentors to new participants.

Due to limited capacity, registered students are expected to attend each day.
